Supreme Court to hear plea seeking FIR against Justice Yashwant Varma

Justice Yashwant Varma stated that neither he nor any of his family members ever put money in his home's storeroom.

LBC News Network

Visakhapatnam

The Supreme Court listed a petition on March 28, 2025, asking for a directive to the police to file a First Information Report and look into claims of "huge sums of unaccounted money" discovered on the official residence property of Justice Yashwant Varma, a judge now serving on the Delhi High Court.

Justices A.S. Oka and Ujjal Bhuyan make up the bench that is considering the case.

Three attorneys—Mathews J. Nedumpara, Hemali Suresh Kurne, and Rajesh Vishnu Adrekar—as well as a chartered accountant, Mansha Nimesh Mehta, collectively filed the PIL.

The petition contests the authority of the three-member committee that the collegium established to look into the events of March 14, when piles of cash were found in Justice Varma's home after a fire.

It also contests the 1991 ruling in the K Veeraswami case, wherein the Supreme Court held that no criminal action may be taken against a High Court or Supreme Court judge without the Chief Justice of India's prior consent.

Lead petitioner

Justice Yashwant Varma

Nedumpara argued that the issue involves a greater public interest and sought the Supreme Court bench, presided over by Chief Justice of India (CJI) Sanjiv Khanna, to list and hear it immediately on Wednesday.

The petition contended that this decision was "rendered per incuriam and sub silentio" and that if the police were aware of a cognisable offense, they were required to file a formal complaint.

The petitioners asked the Supreme Court to order the Delhi Police to file a formal complaint and carry out an impartial, efficient investigation free from intervention from any authorities, including those mentioned in the Veeraswami ruling.

Additionally, they wanted the government to be ordered to take proactive measures against judicial corruption, such as passing the now-defunct Judicial Standards and Accountability Bill, 2010.

"All are equal before the law, and the criminal laws apply equally to all, irrespective of one's status or position," the petition argued, highlighting the idea of equality before the law.

The president and governors, who speak for "we the people," are the lone exception to our constitutional system.

The fundamental tenet of the rule of law was emphasized in the petition's conclusion: "The law is the very structure upon which the idea of the rule of law is based. Even the King is regarded as being under God and the law, not above it.

According to media sources, unaccounted cash was unintentionally recovered after a fire at Justice Varma's home on the evening of March 14.

Justice Yashwant Varma was out of town when the fire started, so his family notified the police and fire department.

Official records regarding the recovery of what seemed to be unaccounted money were made after first responders discovered a significant quantity of cash inside a room after the fire was extinguished.

Government officials soon learned of the stash, and they subsequently told the CJI about it.

Justice Varma was accused of corruption as a result of the incident, but he has disputed the charges and insisted that there seems to have been a plot to frame him.

CJI Khanna took the matter very seriously and held a collegium meeting right away.

All members of the collegium agreed that Justice Varma needed to be moved right away. He has been moved to Allahabad HC, his parent HC. In October 2021, he relocated to the Delhi High Court.

However, several members of the five-judge collegium believed that allowing a transfer in response to such a significant incident would damage the judiciary's reputation and undermine public confidence in the institution.

They suggested that in order to remove Justice Varma from office, Parliament should first ask him to stand down and, if he refused, the CJI should launch an internal investigation. The CJI decided to upload the inquiry report of Chief Justice D K Upadhyay of the Delhi high court in the incident on March 22 after forming a three-member team to investigate the claims internally.

The Delhi Police Commissioner reportedly showed the Chief Justice of the High Court a video of the recovered charred cash, and the Supreme Court has since posted it on its website.

Along with Justice Varma's response, the Supreme Court also released the Chief Justice of the Delhi High Court's report on the occurrence.

Poetry

You are not your age,
Nor the size of clothes you wear,
You are not a weight,
Or the colour of your hair.
You are not your name,
Or the dimples in your cheeks,
You are all the books you read,
And all the words you speak,
You are your croaky morning voice,
And the smiles you try to hide,
You're the sweetness in your laughter,
And every tear you've cried,
You're the songs you sing so loudly,
When you know you're all alone,
You're the places that you've been to,
And the one that you call home,
You're the things that you believe in,
And the people that you love,
You're the photos in your bedroom,
And the future you dream of,
You're made of so much beauty,
But it seems that you forgot,
When you decided that you were defined,
By all the things you're not.

Rushikonda Beach has once again seen the fluttering of the Blue Flag. On March 24, Kandula Durgesh, Minister of Tourism, unfurled the Blue Flag.

Following concerns of inadequate maintenance of the facilities in Rushikonda, the Denmark-based Foundation for Environment Education (FEE) temporarily revoked the Blue Flag designation.

'Rushikonda beach is one of the first eight beaches in India to receive the Blue Flag certification, which is a testament to its commitment to environmental sustainability and tourism development.

We instructed officials to maintain a strict security plan, environmental conservation, traffic management, water purification, and waste management systems," he said.

Vizag retained as IPL centre for 2025, set to host two Delhi Capitals games

LBC News Network

Visakhapatnam

Both residents and archaeologists were intrigued and curious when a centuries-old granite statue of Lord Vishnu, fractured and fragmented from its torso, inexplicably washed up on the beach at Pedda Rushikonda on Friday night.

During her nighttime walk, Rushikonda resident Dipali Naidu first noticed the 3.1-foot idol, which was discovered in two halves with one arm fractured.

She quickly informed authorities of its uniqueness, which resulted in the Andhra Pradesh State Department of Archaeology and Museums retrieving it.

According to archaeologists, the idol may have once been a part of a temple before being abandoned in the Bay of Bengal, maybe because of its damaged condition.

Its origins have not yet been investigated or deciphered.

The sculpture, which was created in the Janardanaya form—one of Vishnu's 24 holy incarnations—is thought to have been created in the 13th or 14th century.

Viability Gap funds (VGF) initiatives need to be identified and promoted by collectors, he said, adding that the government will boost funds where needed to draw in investments.

The Chief Minister emphasized the value of wealth creation and emphasized that the expansion of important industries including manufacturing, aquaculture, horticulture, and livestock is crucial to Andhra Pradesh's economic prosperity. In order to maximize revenue creation, he advised collectors to concentrate on these areas. "Districts that were formerly thought to be underdeveloped are now developing quickly. Naidu urged collectors to take the lead in promoting growth, saying, "We must adjust and react to this shifting economic landscape."

B.Sc. students T. Harshitha, A. Tejaambika, M. Ashwini, and J. Karthikeya Narayana recently completed a 10-day fellowship tour in the U.S.A. for their project titled "Pioneering Blue Carbon Ecosystems: Restoring Seagrass Meadows on the Visakhapatnam Coast."

This initiative was part of the Climate Tank Accelerator competition, guided by faculty members Dr. B. Madhavi and Dr. B. Sailaja.

Organized by the Student Society for Climate Change Awareness (SSCCA) in collaboration with Seeds of Peace, the program brought together innovators from South Asian countries to address climate change issues. The students started their journey at Caney Fork Farms, focusing on sustainable agriculture and ethical animal husbandry.

“To be on such a vast campus is inspiring. We could only cover half of the department during our week-long stay. It was a privilege to visit the Art Museum, which has a unique and rich collection of works on climate change. We also loved the Innovation Centre – The Wond’ry – where we could explore and share ideas,” said Ms. Harshitha and Ms. Ashwini.

Mr. Teja highlighted the ‘Greenathon’ at Vanderbilt, where students pitched sustainability ideas, and Mr. Karthikeya spoke of the university's goal to achieve net-zero carbon emissions in the next decade.

The students are eager to implement similar projects at their college, such as growing hydroponic plants for their kitchens and enforcing waste segregation and a ban on single-use plastics. During their tour, they presented their seagrass project to professors at Vanderbilt and received positive feedback.

A major highlight was networking with international students and meeting U.S. Senators Cory Booker and Peter Welch in Washington, D.C. The tour was a significant learning experience that inspired them to pursue climate research, global warming initiatives, and seagrass restoration.

The students expressed heartfelt gratitude to their college management for the support and opportunity to participate in the fellowship.

Trump's Return: A Look at the Second Presidency

LBC News Network

Visakhapatnam

Donald Trump's return to the U.S. presidency in 2025 has introduced significant shifts in international economic policies, particularly through the implementation of substantial tariffs on key trading partners.

This examines the potential impacts of these policies on the global economy, focusing on trade dynamics, market stability, inflationary trends, and geopolitical alliances.

Introduction

In his second term, President Donald Trump has enacted aggressive trade measures, including imposing a 25% tariff on imports from Canada and Mexico and a 10% tariff on Chinese goods. These actions mark a departure from previous U.S. trade policies and have far-reaching implications for the global economic landscape.

Impact on Global Trade

The newly imposed tariffs have disrupted established trade flows. Companies like the UK's Brompton Bicycle are considering relocating production to the U.S. to circumvent these tariffs, highlighting the immediate effects on international business operations.

Additionally, the anticipation of these tariffs has led to "front-loading," where U.S. companies accelerate imports to avoid future costs, resulting in increased shipping expenses and elevated wholesale prices globally.

Market Volatility

The tariffs have introduced significant volatility in global markets. Following the announcement, major indices such as the S&P 500, Nasdaq, and Dow Jones experienced declines of up to 1.9%. International markets mirrored this downturn, with notable losses in Asian and European indices.

Currency markets also

U.S. President Donald Trump

reacted, with the U.S. dollar strengthening while the Canadian dollar and euro weakened.

Analysts warn that these policies may dampen economic growth and escalate into trade wars, further complicating the global trade landscape.

Inflationary Pressures

Economists caution that the tariffs could trigger a global trade war and an inflationary spiral in the U.S., which is still recovering from a previous cycle of price increases.

The higher costs of imports may be passed on to consumers, leading to increased prices for goods and services.

Retaliatory measures from affected countries could further exacerbate inflation and slow economic growth.

Geopolitical Realignments

Trump's tariff policies risk alienating traditional allies and may prompt the formation of new economic alliances among countries like China, Canada, Mexico, and the European Union.

Such realignments could undermine longstanding geopolitical relationships and diminish the United States' influence in global economic affairs.

Conclusion

President Trump's second term has ushered in significant changes to U.S. trade policy, with substantial implications for the global economy. The imposition of high tariffs has disrupted trade flows, introduced market volatility, heightened inflationary risks, and may lead to geopolitical shifts as countries respond to these protectionist measures.

Continuous monitoring and analysis will be essential to understand the long-term effects of these policies on global economic stability.

Impact on India

Donald Trump's second term as President of the United States has introduced significant shifts in global economic policies, with notable implications for world economies, including India.

Global Economic Impact

President Trump's administration has implemented substantial tariffs on imports from key trading partners.

In February 2025, the U.S. imposed a 25% tariff on goods from Mexico and Canada and a 10% tariff on Chinese imports.

These measures aim to bolster domestic production and address trade imbalances. However, they have led to increased costs for U.S. consumers and businesses, potential retaliatory tariffs from affected nations, and heightened volatility in global financial markets.

Impact on India

While India's direct exposure to these specific tariffs is limited, the broader implications are significant:

Trade Diversion: Global companies may seek alternative markets to circumvent U.S. tariffs, presenting opportunities for India to attract businesses looking to relocate their supply chains.

Market Volatility: The uncertainty stemming from U.S. trade policies can lead to fluctuations in global markets, affecting investor sentiment and capital flows into emerging economies like India.

Currency Dynamics: Trade tensions can influence currency valuations, impacting India's export competitiveness and import costs.

Additionally, India's recent budget initiatives, such as making income up to Rs. 1.2 million tax-free and reducing duties on various consumer goods, aim to stimulate domestic consumption. These measures could help mitigate potential external economic shocks resulting from global trade disruptions.

Conclusion

In summary, President Trump's second term has introduced policies that reshape global trade dynamics. While India faces challenges from potential market volatility and shifting trade patterns, proactive domestic economic strategies may position it to navigate and potentially benefit from these global changes.

Kunal Kamra files pre-arrest bail plea at Madras High Court

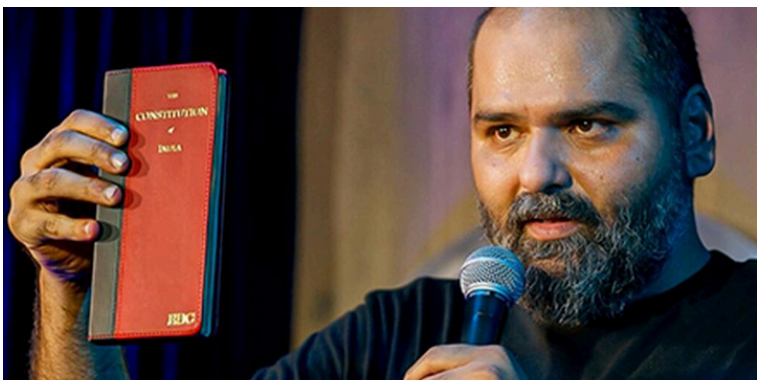

Twelve Shiv Sena employees, including leader Rahool Kanal, were taken into custody by the police

LBC News Network

Visakhapatnam

A FIR was filed against stand-up comedian Kunal Kamra after he performed a parody song that reportedly targeted Maharashtra's Deputy Chief Minister Eknath Shinde.

Kamra went to the Madras High Court to request for anticipatory release. Following a complaint from Shiv Sena MLA Murji Patel, Kamra was the subject of a zero FIR, which was then forwarded to Mumbai's Khar police. The FIR refers to Bharat Nyay Sanhita Sections 353(1)(b), 353(2) (public mischief), and 356(2)

(defamation). This comes a day after Kamra was called to appear before Mumbai police on March 31 in relation to the case. On Tuesday, Kamra was asked to appear before the police, but he requested seven days' notice.

At Khar's Habitat Club, Shiv Sena members had gone on the rampage after Kamra's comments offended them.

Twelve Shiv Sena employees, including leader Rahool Kanal, were taken into custody by the police for damaging the studio. Hours after being detained, they were released on bond.

Putin suggests temporary administration for Ukraine to end war

LBC News Network

Visakhapatnam

Russian news outlets reported early Friday that Russian President Vladimir Putin proposed putting Ukraine under a temporary government to allow for new elections and the signing of important agreements to end the conflict.

During a visit to the northern port of Murmansk, Putin made remarks that coincide with U.S. efforts to resolve the conflict by reestablishing ties with Russia and holding separate talks with both Kyiv and Moscow. Ukrainian and European politicians have accused the Kremlin leader of attempting to extend ceasefire negotiations without any real intention of halting hostilities. In February 2022, Russia invaded Ukraine, resulting in hundreds of thousands of deaths and injuries, millions of displaced people, destroyed communities, and the most intense conflict between Moscow and the West in decades. Putin's proposal for a transitional government seemed to resolve his long-standing grievance that Ukraine's government is not a suitable negotiating partner because President Volodymyr Zelenskiy has continued to hold office past the expiration of his mandate in May 2024.

Canada ends ‘old relationship’ with US over tariff war

LBC News Network

A significant change in Canada's relationship with the United States was proclaimed by newly appointed Prime Minister Mark Carney, who stated that the "old relationship" between the two countries "is over" and emphasized the necessity for the nation to lessen its reliance on its neighbor.

Following the implementation of further tariffs by US President Donald Trump, this announcement was made.

“It’s clear the US is no longer a reliable partner. It is possible that with comprehensive negotiations, we could reestablish an element of confidence but there will be no going backwards.”

Following talks with provincial premiers, Carney made a speech in Ottawa and urged Canada to reevaluate its security and economic relations with its southern neighbor, according to Fox News.

At the Jawaharlal Nehru stadium here on Thursday, Sethu FC defeated Odisha FC 3-1 in the Indian Women's League thanks to goals from Ugandan forward Amnah Nababi and her Cameroonian partner Moussa Zouwairatou in the first half alone.

Sethu moved up from sixth place on the league table to third place with this victory. Nababi scored a fantastic goal from well outside the area in the 13th minute Zouwairatou to score. Sethu, who have given up the most goals in the league thus far, came very close to keeping a clean sheet.

Sarangthem Khambi Chanu, the substitute goalkeeper, made two excellent stops in the 96th minute, tipping one over the crossbar and diving to stop another from reaching the bottom-right corner of the net.
